HITLER HAS A BIRTHDAY, BUT A GLOOMY ONE

Picture's Far Different as Fuehrer Reaches 54 From Outlook a Year Ago.

STOOGES ARE PESSIMISTIC

Goering and Goebbels Reveal Dire Situation of Nazi Leaders In Speeches.

By HARRISON SALISBURY

LONDON —(UP)— Adolf Hitler celebrated his grimmest birthday today since he came to power.

At 54, war wasn't what it seemed to him at 53.

His Nazi henchmen sounded the somber notes for the fuehrer, he kept quiet, hard at work, Axis radios said, at his headquarters.

Hitler's real feelings on this birthday, of course, were masked by Nazi propaganda. But the world, torn by the global war he caused, got an idea from the gloom-filled statements of Nazi leaders Joseph Goebbels and Hermann Goering from whom the occasion drew words resembling the truth.

Hitler is atlas, Goebbels said, with the world on his shoulders, knowing "days cramped with work, nights cramped with sorrows." Then, in his speech broadcast by German radios, he compared the position now with a year ago:

"We were standing (a year ago) on the threshold of unprecedented developments for Germany. The winter war was the hardest and cruelest ever experienced by mankind. . . A way out of trials and sufferings, or its end, nowhere can be discerned."

For this birthday for the one-time Austrian house painter there were no parades or demonstrations scheduled, radio Vichy in subjugated France said.

On April 20, 1942, things were ar different — Goebbels spoke ruthfully when he said that. The Nazi military position was.

LONDON—(INS)—The Breslau, Paris and Luxembourg radios, over which the Nazis had promised to broadcast programs dedicated to Hitler on the 54th anniversary of his birth, left the air at 10 a. m. today, the Exchange Telegraph company reported. Berlin transmitters also shut down for a time but they returned to the air. The other stations remained silent.

285 Seniors Approved for Graduation

Outdoor Commencement To Be Staged June 4 at Stadium Field.

The stage had been set today for the graduation of 285 Mansfield high school seniors at commencement exercises Friday evening, June 4, at Stadium field.

Commencement plans were approved last night by the board of education which authorized the graduation of 144 girls and 141 boys. Two of the members of the class, Herbert Hamilton and Jacob Bautz, will receive their diplomas although they are in the navy and probably won't be present at the exercises.

The school board several weeks ago voted to permit seniors who went into the armed forces to graduate if they had a good scholastic record at the time they left school. Both Hamilton and Bautz had 14 units of credit when they enlisted in the navy.

The commencement speaker will be Don Bolt, newspaperman, radio commentator and authority on international affairs. Native of Indiana, he served for a number of years with the British Merchant marine. He has been on the staffs of the Chicago Herald and Examiner St Louis Globe Democrat, and Pittsburgh Post. He is a distant relative of Ben Bolt, the Texas "Trailbreaker" who was immortalized in a popular song a number of years ago.

Baccalaureate services for the graduating class will be conducted May 30 in the First Lutheran church with Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger, pastor of the First Christian church, delivering the sermon.

Diplomas will be given to graduates at the commencement by John H. Eisaman, clerk of the board of education, whose son, John H. Eisaman, jr., is a member of the class.

In approving the class for graduation the board made the customary provision for withholding the diplomas of any members who fail to meet the requirements during the final weeks of the school term. Members of the class are:

START UPHILL FIGHT TO HIT WAR LOAN GOAL

County Workers See Tough Sledding Ahead To Raise Needed $2,645,826.

$150,000 DAILY QUOTA

Task Falls on Shoulders of Small Investors With Most of Big Purchases In.

Richland county's second War Loan campaign started an uphill battle today—a fight to raise $2,645,826 in the next 10 days.

Main source from which to get that sum is the small investor—the buyer of $25, $50, and $100 war bonds.

To obtain that needed $2,645,826, it will be necessary for Richland countians to contribute at the rate of $150,000 a day until May 1.

H. G. Brunner, co-chairman of the drive, said today that most large investments have already been subscribed and that the job now is one for the small investor.

Yesterday's sales made an increase of $62,612 in the total subscription. Of the $4,003,173.45 total reported today, $2,822,673.45 was the amount of the non-bank purchase to date and $1,180,500 represents bank purchases.

Nearly one of every 22 persons in the county has subscribed to this largest bond campaign of the war, putting Richland county near the top of the list of counties in the state closest to their goals. Eight banks and 3,444 individuals, institutions and groups have had a part in moving the county campaign along.

Brunner indicated today that the response so far was "very gratifying" and he predicted continuous buying on the part of the public will push the drive over the finish line, possibly ahead of the rest of the state.

Meanwhile in Washington, Secretary of the Treasury Henry J. Morgenthau, jr. reported that only $403,000,000 of savings bonds — the little series E, F, and G bonds - had been bought during the first week of the drive. He said that he was glad to have the $9,953,000,000 which all kinds of investors loaned during last week, but he re-emphasized that more

Allies Continue To Take Heavy Toll In Air War

12 More Junkers Aerial Transports Are Shot Out Of Sky By American And British Fighters, Bringing Total In 2 Days To 70.

(By International News Service)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—The number of enemy planes shot down in this theater Sunday and Monday now stands at the staggering total of 112, including 70 Junkers-52 transports, Allied headquarters disclosed today.

An official announcement revealed that 12 of the huge Junkers had been shot down Monday, instead of 10 as originally stated—in addition to Sunday's bag of 58. The successes against the big Axis troop carriers flying the vital supply route between Sicily and Tunisia were scored by American, South African and British fighter pilots.

Twenty-four Axis planes were shot down by the northwest African air forces yesterday, including 21 over the Gulf of Tunis. Of these, 12 were Junkers-52's. In actions elsewhere in this raging aerial theater, 39 other enemy planes have been brought to earth, boosting the two-day total bag to 112.

Even as the Axis planes were being shot out of the skies in increasing numbers, their dwindling landing fields were battered by Allied fliers. Fast Mitchell bombers accompanied by A-20-A attack bombers and escorted by Spitfire and Lightning formations pounded the La Sebala airdrome.

Night-flying Bisleys of the RAF hit the La Marsa landing ground 24 hours after French bombers had started huge conflagrations at that field. The French planes also blasted Protville, north of Tunis.

Flying Fortresses, striking through a hole in the clouds over enemy-held Tunis, scored at least four hits on railroad installations in that city and demolished a large section of its industrial center, which extends parallel to a large dock.

Three large fires were started at La Sebala, while American P-38 Lightning fighters which flew as escorts to the bombers prevented enemy fighters from attacking.

Spitfires and Warhawks ranged afield on a continual search for new fleets of aerial transports and patrolled the northeast coast virtually without let-up. There was no hint as to what the huge Junkers might be carrying, although previous announcements of successful attacks on the big transport planes had said it was apparent that they were loaded with fuel and crated material.

Stiff ground fighting was reported on the central sector of the shrinking battlefront where French troops successfully repulsed an enemy counter-attack.

Continued patrolling in preparation for the final all-out battle to oust the Germans and Italians from North Africa was reported from other sectors along the front

SUBSTITUTE ON LABOR BILL SEEN

Catlett Says New Measure To Arise From Hearing on French Plan Tonight.

A substitute bill, providing for less rigid restrictions on labor unions than proposed by the French bill, probably will result from an open hearing of the labor measure before a special house judiciary sub-committee in Columbus late today, John L. Catlett, Richland county representative and chairman of the committee, predicted today.

Catlett said the five members of the sub-committee had tentatively agreed on a substitute measure which would require unions to file annual financial reports, enable them to file legal actions as an organization and be sued as such, and provide for a "cooling-off" period before a strike is called.

He indicated that such proposed regulations as compulsory registration of union collective bargaining agents and extended enumeration of unfair labor practices

Air Depot Near Shelby Named In Memory Of Capt. E. L. Parsel

The army air force supply depot under construction near Shelby was designated today by the war department as the Parsel depot as a memorial to Capt. Elmer L. Parsel, Plymouth flier who was killed in an accident during the early stages of the war while battling the Japanese in the far eastern theater.

Announcement of this was made by J. Harry McGregor, 17th district congressman who sought the official designation at the request of Shelby residents who had earlier petitioned the congressman to work toward that end.

The depot is located five miles from the farm where the flier was born and reared.

Tribute to the 36-year-old pilot, twice decorated for bravery, came little more than a year following his death.

The county's first casualty of World war II, the bomber pilot was killed April 2, 1942, near Bangalore, India. Victim of the same accident was Lieut. Robert P. Spreng, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Spreng of Mansfield.

Capt. Parsel's flying career began in 1927 when he started taking flying lessons while working on his father's farm shortly after graduation from Plymouth high school. He went to Peoria as a garage mechanic to pay for flying lessons. He later purchased a plane

READY: Chetniks Poised To Join Allies In Balkan Attack

(By United Press)

LONDON—Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch sent word from his secret headquarters in the mountains of Yugoslavia today that his patriot army is poised to attack Axis occupation forces the moment the Allies invade the Balkans.

Until that time, Mikhailovitch said in a cable to the United Press, his Chetniks will play a "waiting game," broken only by occasional skirmishes with Axis troops and organized sabotage.

Mikhailovitch, who is war minister in the Yugoslav exile government, denied repeated Soviet charges that he has made contact and collaborated with German, Italian or other Axis authorities. The Soviets have contended that Mikhailovitch joined Axis forces in fighting rival patriot armies led by Communist partisans.

"I never met any Italian generals, although several attempts were made by their side and even by the Germans for an interview," he said.

"A few days ago the Germans tried to arrange a meeting. I replied that I was not interested and would continue to fight until Yugoslavia had been freed of every German and Italian."

He contended that it would be suicide for his outnumbered and underarmed Chetniks to launch any major offensive at this time.

"It would be only useless bloodshed," he said. "If we unloosed a campaign now, we would be playing into the hands of the Germans. Our allies must understand our military situation. The Yugoslav army in our country is left

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT — (UP) — British Empire troops from all over the world have arrived safely in Britain after one of the largest convoy crossings of the Atlantic yet undertaken, military authorities revealed today.

Most of the troops were from the Royal Canadian Air Force, but a large number were Australian and New Zealand air force officers. The Pacific troops came from their ports of embarkation and landed at a west coast port, crossing the continent by rail, to join the Canadians.

Also included were Belgian and Netherlands navy men, a few Americans, Yugoslavs and other soldiers of the United Nations.

Ashlander Dies When Auto Strikes Parked Truck.

ASHLAND — William J. Benninghoff, 47, native Ashlander, was killed instantly last night when his automobile struck a truck parked on State Route 250, three miles north of here.

Benninghoff was employed at the Excel Garment company in Norwalk, and was driving home from work at the time he was killed.

Driver of the truck, Blair L. Flickinger, of Wooster, escaped injury. He told officers that just prior to the accident he had helped Benninghoff get his car out of the ditch. Driving about 10 miles down the road he stopped the truck at a roadside park. Benninghoff's car struck it a few minutes later, officers were told.

ON AIR TONIGHT

Roosevelt To Broadcast at 11: Topic Unannounced.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — President Roosevelt tonight makes a nation-wide radio address at 11 p. m. (Mansfield time.)

The brief announcement of the president's broadcast was made by the White House and no details were given. There was some speculation that Mr. Roosevelt may say something about the raid staged on Tokyo a year ago by American airmen led by Maj. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle or give further details on "Shangri-la," starting point of the attack.

Mr. Roosevelt may also touch on the war. This was suggested by the fact that today is the 54th birthday of Adolf Hitler who reportedly will make some pronouncement.

Convene Today To Establish Three Share-Ride Depots

State civilian defense representatives were scheduled to meet in Mansfield this afternoon with a special worker transportation committee to set up "share-the ride" depots in the city area.

It was indicated today at OCD headquarters in Mansfield that three depots would be established at first in the east, south and west sections of the city, and possibly others later if found necessary.

Mrs. L. H. Jones is chairman of the Mansfield committee named by Mrs. John Pierce, executive secretary of the OCD war services division, to study the share-ride plan. Others on the committee are Mrs. O. H. McDaniel and Mrs. Albert Schwein.

Under tentative plans, the depots would be established in stores or other buildings which are open for long periods during the day and evening. Persons who have room in their cars to take others, to work and workers looking for rides would register at the depots. The Mansfield committee then would match the cards, or arrange a ride schedule.

Registration cards will contain the name, address and telephone numbers of workers and car owners, their place of employment, and the hours when they go to work and return.

Seeks $19,205 In U. S. Funds To Operate Five Nursery Schools

The Mansfield board of education today requested $19,205 in federal funds to finance a maximum of five nursery schools in the city from June 1 to Dec. 31 for the children of women employed in war industries.

Total cost of the project for the seven-month period was set at $42,475, but the application stated that the rest of the cost could be financed from a charge of 50 cents a day per child and local contributions.

The 28-page application, prepared by Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller and the civilian defense child care committee, headed by Russell Gimbel, will go to WPA headquarters in Columbus, then to the state department of education, and finally to government agencies which will investigate the need for the nursery schools.

The project would provide care for approximately 200 children from two to six years old. The nurseries would be open 10, 12, or 14 hours a day and six or seven days a week as needed.

At least five persons, including teachers, nurse, cook, and housekeeper, would be in charge of each unit which would be located in a grade school or other adequately equipped building. The

SPREAD: Allied Planes Hit Five Jap Bases Along Islands

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The navy reported today that American fliers showered 17 tons of bombs on Kiska in nine raids on the enemy's Aleutians stronghold Sunday, while U. S. and Japanese airmen traded new blows in the Solomons.

(By Associated Press)

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today Allied warplanes, operating alone despite the enemy's mounting aerial strength, attacked five Japanese bases yesterday in the islands above Australia.

On both sides, the tremendous struggle for control of the southwest Pacific skies had slackened appreciably.

Targets hit by single United Nations planes included the enemy airdromes at Hollandia, Dutch New Guinea; Gasmata and Cape Gloucester, New Britain, and Lae and Finschhafen, New Guinea.

A small Japanese ship was also bombed off Tanimbar island.

On the Burma front, British headquarters reported that Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell's forces ambushed 200 Japanese troops on Mayu ridge, along the Bay of Bengal, killing 25 and wounding "many more."

Otherwise, the situation remained unchanged as the British held strong defensive positions after from Enfidaville on the east coast to Cap Serrat in the north.

The counter-attack against the French was launched Sunday night but was "easily repulsed," a communique issued by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said.

"Fighters of the tactical air force yesterday continued their offensive sweeps off the Tunisian coast and destroyed 12 Junkers-52 transport and eight other aircraft," it was stated.

It was disclosed from additional reports on Sunday's large-scale air victory in which 85 enemy craft first were announced was destroyed that three more Axis fighters were smashed, bringing the total to 88.

Throughout yesterday, the communique said, Allied fighter craft maintained sweeps over the forward battle areas and destroyed four enemy planes.

Medium and light bombers made several attacks on the La Sebala airfield while fighter-bombers blasted at a concentration of Axis tanks.

"Both these targets were well covered with bombs," the communique said

"On the night of April 18-19," continued the communique, light and medium bombers continued their attacks on enemy airfields in Tunisia, starting large fires at La Marsa.

"From all these operations 12 of our aircraft are missing."

The furious Allied air assaults were believed to be exacting a heavy toll of Axis dead.

U. S. Equipment Reaches French

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa—(U.P.)—A special convoy carrying only equipment for French forces in North Africa arrived safely, it was announced today, and America's vast program to provide everything from tanks to knapsacks for the French is getting into full swing.

Some French troops already marching into battle wear American uniforms and use American tools of war and the effect of the re-equipment program was demonstrated by today's communique reporting that the French had easily repulsed a German attack in the Bou Arada sector.

Materials arriving from the United States are being assembled at the rates of hundreds of units a day. The new equipment, identical to that issued to American troops, includes Sherman tanks, light M-5 tanks, artillery, tank destroyers and vehicles of all sizes from jeeps to cargo carriers and field kitchens.

RAF Night Fighters Shoot Up Rail Lines

LONDON — (U.P.) — British night fighters, taking over the Allied aerial offensive while bad weather grounded heavy bombers, shot up German transportation facilities from north France to northwest Germany last night.

One Beaufighter pilot last night attacked three trains in France and saw one locomotive burst into flames. Another pilot raked the entire length of a train with machine-gun and cannon fire.

Whirlwind fighter-bombers attacked shipping in the English channel during the night Two planes were lost in all night operations.

Soviets Wipe Out German Wedge

MOSCOW—(U.P.)— Soviet guards in the northwest Caucasus today wiped out a wedge driven into their lines by more than 3,000 German troops with strong tank support in a night attack.

At least 100 German officers and men were killed, boosting to more than 2,100 the number sacrificed by the Germans in 24 hours of futile counter-attacks aimed at breaking the Soviet arc hemming them back against the sea.

A large air fleet was supporting the German counter-blows in the Caucasus. Red air force pilots and Soviet anti-aircraft gunners shot down 17 of them and damager seven more, however.

Britain Allows Church Bells to Peal

LONDON—(INS)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill hinted in commons today that the government believes the danger of a German invasion of Britain has ended.

He announced the lifting of the ban on the ringing of church bells, since 1940 reserved as a signal that the country was being invaded.

Henceforth, he said, the bells may be rung in the ordinary manner to summon worshipers to church and on other special occasions. The ruling came just before Easter Sunday.

The government lifted the ban temporarily once to permit the bells to peal in celebration of the British Eight Army's breakthrough at El Alamein in Egypt and again at Christmas, 1942.

money must come from more people. He said this can be attained only if more individuals buy more savings bonds.

The first week's total of $9,953,000,000—just $3,047,000,000 short of the announced $13,000,000,000 goal—included investments of $7,466,000,000 by non-banking lenders and $2,487,000,000 by commercial banks.

Assurance that the original goal would be reached was seen in the fact that while last week's total left only $3,047,000,000 to go, banking investments permitted so far were half their $5,000,000,000 allotment. Treasury officials today were confident the banks would absorb the balance of their goal when subscriptions to certain securities are opened to them later in the drive.

This would mean that when all bank subscriptions are in, other investors would have to loan only slightly more than $600,000,000 to hit the $13,000,000,000 mark. There was little doubt at the treasury that this additional sum would be received and it lent emphasis to Morgenthau's assertion last week that the treasury would "take all the money it can get" and indicated officials hope to borrow considerably more than the announced $13,000,000,000.

Ohio Sailor Aboard 'Shangri La' Carrier

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The mother of a suburban Lakewood sailor said today her son told her an aircraft carrier was the "Shangri La" base from which Maj. Gen. Jimmie Doolittle's fliers attacked Tokyo April 18, 1942.

(Shangri La, an imaginary place in Tibet in James Hilton's novel "Lost Horizon," was the name President Roosevelt gave reporters as the taking-off place of the planes which carried out the Tokyo raid.)

Mrs. Julia Radulovich revealed her son, aviation machinists' mate George Radulovich, 20, was a member of the carrier's crew and gave her the information when here on leave last December. She said he is now on the west coast.

Mrs. Radulovich related her son told her how the force of Billy Mitchell bombers took off from a carrier 250 miles from Japan amid cheer. of the ship's crew.

The mother also said her son informed her the task force escorting the aircraft carrier sank two Jap fishing boats and an enemy destroyer en route to the point where the bombers took off. Mrs. Radulovich quoted her son as saying Maj. Doolittle was the first to take off and flew overhead until the bomber squadron assembled in formation and then headed for Japan.

Americans Punished, Says Jap Spokesman

Maj. Gen. Nakao Yakagi, chief of the army press section of Japanese imperial headquarters, said today that American fliers taken prisoner after the raid on Tokyo a year ago had been "severely punished" for alleged bombing of non-military objectives.

Yakagi, whose radio statement was recorded by the United Press at San Francisco, said that suicide squadrons of Japanese fighter planes would intercept any future attempt to raid Japan and crash themselves into the enemy planes.

Be Polite to Invaders, Italians Are Told

(By United Press)

Pamphlets telling Italian citizens to be polite to the invaders in the event of an Allied landing in Italy are being distributed by the Italian government, an Algiers broadcast reported by the federal communications commission said today.

"Civilians who find themselves in the zone momentarily occupied by the enemy must show themselves courteous toward the invader," the pamphlets were quoted as saying.

Guerilla defense would confuse military defense, the pamphlet said. It suggested that women do all necessary errands because they have "more chance to inspire the courtesy and compassion of the enemy."

"There is no objection if women and children ask the invader for food, for invasion can entail famine," the pamphlet said.

Seeks $19,205 In U. S. Funds To Operate Five Nursery Schools

application lists the Hedges, Bushnell, Newman, West Fifth, Carpenter, and Brinkerhoff schools as probable sites for the nurseries.

Children would be examined and vaccinated before entering the nurseries and they would be checked daily by a nurse. Two meals a day, recreation, and sleeping quarters would be provided.

The project has the approval of the city's major industries, labor organizations, and the Chamber of Commerce.

Included in the application were Chamber of Commerce figures showing that 11,659 persons were employed in Mansfield industries March 1 and a prediction that 14,600 would be working in industries by the end of the year, more than half of them women.

Each of the five units would afford care for 42 children. Mothers would leave their children at the nursery on their way to work in the morning and stop for them on the return trip in the evening.

A small-scale nursery is already in operation at the Friendly House, but it received no government aid.

Supt. Miller said only a few of the applications for funds have been approved in Ohio, all of them in cities which are heavy producers of war materials.

This is Easter Time . . .

Now millions of Americans reaffirm their faith in truth, justice and

But This Easter is Different . . .

If this were the Easter of other years, we would talk about the Easter Parade: new bonnets, smart dresses, trim suits, gay shoes, colorful handbags . . . spring outfits for every member of the family.

Of course we have all these things. But in assembling this Easter's wardrobes for American families everywhere, we kept in sight every moment, the wartime job the Home Front has to do.

Every Easter Outfit Has Become a Uniform!

THE HOME FRONT UNIFORM IS EVERYTHING YOU WEAR!

It is seen in many different styles and colors. It may be a dress or a pair of slacks and a sport shirt. It may be a skirt and blouse, or an overall, or a gabardine suit.

It is whatever kind and type of apparel is most comfortable and long-wearing . . . most fitting and becoming . . . most helpful and economical for the particular job you have to do.

THE HOME FRONT JOB IS EVERYWHERE!

In the church, in the school . . . in the factory and the shipyard . . . on the farm and the assembly line . . . in the store and the home.

THE HOME FRONT WORKER IS EVERYBODY!

Your son Joe . . . and your daughter Mary . . . your husband Sam . . . your neighbors Ann and Henry, and you, yourself!

FOR FORTY-ONE YEARS PENNEY STORES, FROM COAST TO COAST, HAVE BEEN OUTFITTING THRIFTY AMERICAN FAMILIES—JUST AS THEY ARE DOING TODAY!

The knowledge and the skill gained from our long experience of low-cost, neighborly storekeeping, stand America in good stead today.

For now, more than ever, Mr. Penney's original idea of "Not How Much Can I Get" but "How Much Can I Give" is proving its soundness and value. Your local Penney store sells hats and coats and dresses for you and your children. It sells shoes and hosiery and underwear for every member of your family. It sells slacks and sweaters and shirts for men and boys of all ages.

In fact, it sells every item of apparel you can think of, as well as sheets, blankets, yard goods, curtains and similar things for the home.

Altogether your Penney store is helping in many vital ways to quartermaster the Home Front.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

MY FATHER wasted no words when Adams had come into the room.

"Get in touch as soon as possible with Dixon," he said, "the man who is trailing Ruth Hayes, and bring me his report on her up to this afternoon."

Adams nodded and went back into the other suite.

"I want to check on Dixon as much as I do on the woman," my father told me. Then with lifted eyebrows he looked toward my sitting room, where he had sent Katharine.

"As you probably guessed," he said, "Hal asked that I send Katharine in alone. Now I wonder how long their goodbyes will take."

"Not long," I asserted confidently. "Hal probably would like to take hours, but all Katharine's attention and affection are focused on Jack, she is so terribly worried about him."

I tried to make my voice and words an appeal to him to break his silence about Jack's whereabouts, and was sorely tempted to tell him I already knew of Jack's return to the hideaway, having accidentally caught a glimpse of him there through a door.

Now my father's glance at me was oddly speculative.

"I wonder," he said, then fell silent while I clenched my fingers into my palms.

"If I reveal something to you," he said, "and give you permission to tell it to Katharine, do you think you can guarantee that she will take no action, nor voice any questions embarrassing to me, until I give her permission?"

"I am sure you can count upon both of us for obedience," I said, my pulse leaping.

"Good!" he commented. "But remember, I am relying on your word just given me."

"I will remember," I said huskily, and after a moment of silence he spoke again.

"I told you before," he said slowly, "that Jack had left the hideaway, but that I was reasonably sure he was safe, and I permitted you to relay that information to Katharine. But I did not tell you, principally because Jack himself forbade it, that he returned to the hideaway the day after he left, because he could find sanctuary nowhere else. He has been there ever since, busily at work on his experiment, aided by Professor Diswell, and he will remain there for an indefinite time to come."

"Oh, how wonderful!" I exclaimed trying to simulate surprise, but easily conscious that my father's eyes were regarding me with keen appraisal.

"This is no surprise to you, Margaret," he said. "How did you discover Jack's presence in the hideaway?"

I met his eyes steadily.

"I saw him through the crevice of a door when I was down at the hideaway with Carolyn," I said, "but no one else saw him, and as I thought you didn't wish me to know he was there, I said nothing about it to you or anyone else, save to admit to Dickey that he was right when he taxed me with having seen Jack."

"Then Katharine does not suspect?"

"No, indeed," I told him. "It has been very hard not to tell her, for that would ease her great terror for Jack.

"You now have my permission to tell her," he said abruptly, "but make no promises to let her see Jack. However, I will try to arrange that as soon as I can, but I have no idea when it will be."

He rose from his chair then and put his hand on my shoulder.

"You have been very patient and long-suffering with me, my daughter," he said. "You deserve fuller confidence, and whenever possible I shall give it to you."

I reached my hand up and clasped his.

"I am not asking for it," I told him stoutly. "All I ask is to be a good soldier."

"You are that," he said, stooping to kiss me. "And now I am going into the other suite to catch up with some work and await the return of Adams with his report. Also, I know you will wish to lose no time in giving Katharine my message."

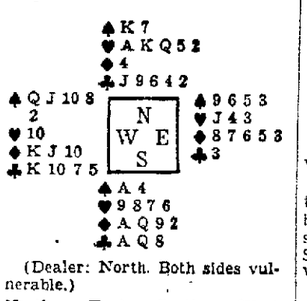
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

ALWAYS DO THIS FIRST

TO SAY that there are no "nevers" and no "always" in bridge is going just a little bit too far. One positive "never" is observed by fine players who, as declarer, never will play from the dummy to the first trick until they have made a plan for the play of the hand. An absolute "always" among them is to take a good look at the situation regarding number of entries into the dummy and their own hand before completing the plan.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	5 NT	Pass
6 ♥	Pass	6 NT	Pass

Talk about hogging the play! In rubber bridge it would have been unpardonable for South, with that four card fit, to put the final contract into No Trumps. But this was match-point duplicate, and making just a few more points than declarers at other tables might win top on the hand Furthermore, South thought he could play a hand better than his partner. If he could, he didn't, however.

Following the spade Q lead, South decided the hand was a cinch, that he could get five tricks in hearts, four in clubs if the finesse failed, two in spades and one in diamonds without even trying the finesse. So he quickly called the spade K from dummy, ran three top hearts and then realized the suit was blocked. So he finessed the club J, which West smartly ducked, and then the Q, which West took. That blocked the dummy, so South managed to take only four tricks in hearts, two each in spades and clubs, and one diamond, nine all told, and was down three.

Examination should have shown South that the spade K belonged in dummy for a late entry. If he took the first trick in his own hand, the heart A K, Q and 9, then the club A, followed by a lead of the club Q, it would have made no difference whether West used his Q then or saved it. Five tricks then would have been sure in hearts, four in clubs, two in spades and one in diamonds, a total of the needed 12.

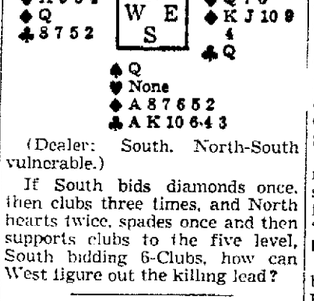
Tomorrow's Problem.

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

If South bids diamonds once, then clubs three times, and North hearts twice, spades once and then supports clubs to the five level, South bidding 6-Clubs, how can West figure out the killing lead?

Two selections by MacDowell, "To a Wild Rose" and "Shadow Dance" and "Prelude" by Bach and "Stude Comique" by Wright comprised Miss Bushnell's second group.

Preceding Miss Bushnell's original compositions, Miss Turner sang "Knowest Thou the Land" from "Mignon" by Thomas and "Let My Songs Fill Your Heart" by Charles.

The original compositions played by Miss Bushnell were "Buzzing Bee," "Twinkle Twinkle," "Dance of the Toy Soldiers," "Irish Melody," "Holiday Airs," "Grasshopper's Hop" "Air in A Minor," "Marionettes" and "Mystery of the Jungle."

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, April 21.

Matters of major importance continue at high pressure, with all the forces and faculties keyed to high tempo. It should be a time for reaching, with confidence and determination, in almost any channel. However it would be well to be cautious with all writings, legal documents and contracts, as well as travel and change. Beware misrepresentations and deceits and there should be expansion, with much happiness in domestic life.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year of much growth and expansion. There should be definite and decisive concentration of forces toward securing cherished goals in business. Be prudent and conventional, not erratic.

THE 2ND WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON!

Winner Take All!

There is one stark and simple fact about war which you had better get straight . . . and quickly, too

THERE IS NO SECOND PLACE IN A WAR—IT'S EITHER WIN OR LOSE!

This war is being fought for tremendous stakes . . .

. . . for your life and your liberty.

. . . for your church and your children.

. . . for your freedom and your future.

And it's WINNER TAKE ALL. Don't forget that for a minute.

The winner will dictate whether tomorrow you shall be a free citizen of a free world, or a helpless serf to a "master race."

The winner will dictate whether you shall live and prosper under the Four Freedoms, or toil hopelessly in the darkness of a "New Order."

The winner will dictate . . . because the winner takes all.

The winner takes all. All you own, all you hold dear.

The winner is being decided right now . . . today . . . this very minute . . . on battlefields all over the world. Will you stand idly by . . . or throw all your weight on our side?

The weight of mighty tanks and planes. The weight of thousands of guns and millions of shells. The weight of billions of dollars . . . 13 billions which your country asks you to lend during this Drive.

Your country wants to borrow every idle dollar you have—every dollar except what you need for the barest necessities of life.

You'll have to give up some luxury or comfort which was dear to your heart. You'll have to postpone some pleasure which you had been eagerly anticipating.

But what of it?

Your sons and brothers and husbands are dying out there . . . fighting your fight. Surely it is no sacrifice to lend your dollars while they are giving their lives.

They need your help. They need the weapons your money can buy. If one of the War Loan volunteers calls on you . . . greet him with open pocketbook. Remember, Uncle Sam's goal is 13 billion dollars in April.

Don't wait to be asked. Go to your nearest bank, investment dealer, broker, Post Office or issuing agency and lay your money on the line. Remember, it's an investment you're making—an investment that pays a good return and insures a happier future for you and your loved ones.

So lend up to the limit.

You'll sleep better for it.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Mansfield Provident Loan girls have been going through their spring training for the coming softball season, but their most faithful fan hasn't been there to see them do it.

B. F. Lindsey has been ill for the past three weeks, so I hear, at his home, 39 West Second street.

The Provident games Lindsey has missed in the past two or three seasons, here and away from home, you can just about count on the knuckles of a little finger.

Counting knuckles instead of fingers is a system I have invented so I can count way up there without taking off my shoes.

The Providents are still waiting for a chance to get outdoors with their spring drills.

Until the weather warms up and the ground dries off and the snow quits falling, they are meeting each Wednesday night for a bit of a workout at the Salvation Army.

After the spring thaw, they expect to step up the number of practice sessions out on the North Lake diamond.

Spring, oh spring, oh springless spring! Summer is due two months from tomorrow. If summer comes, can spring be far behind?

* * *

Second Sacker Jean Herrick of the Providents is home on a 10-day furlough from WAAC duty at Fort Bragg, N. C., and brought along a pair of chevrons to surprise her parents.

It is now Corporal Technician Jean Herrick, 2b.

The 2b still stands for second base, as Jean is managing her barracks softball team. "We're not very good," she admits, "but we have lots of fun."

Jean brought another surprise for the folks back home, in the form of 20 pounds new weight scattered here and there over the frame.

On her, so they tell me, it looks good.

Hi ya, Punkin.

* * *

Third Sacker Donna Schuster, I hear, has been hoping for an Easter furlough from the WAACs. Whether it has developed beyond the hoping stage informant sayeth not.

Big League Season on Today

McNutt Throws Out First Ball at Capital.

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK—(AP)—Weather permitting, the major leagues will take charge of the sports scene again today with a single game at Washington and then will let loose a full broadside tomorrow with all teams in action.

* * *

In spite of the pressure of war, baseball has managed to retain its hold on the interest of fans throughout the nation and will have its familiar opening day furbelows—Public officials throwing out the first balls, pennants being raised, bands playing and peanuts enough for everybody.

At Washington today a crowd of 27,000 was expected at Griffith stadium to see the Senators tackle the Philadelphia Athletics. Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt was selected to handle the opening pitch assignment with Luman Harris of the A's and Dutch Leonard of the Nationals taking over afterward.

Tomorrow this scene will be re-enacted at other ball parks. In the American league the regular opening day program calls for Washington at New York, Boston at Philadelphia, Detroit at Cleveland and Chicago at St. Louis. In the National league the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals will invade Cincinnati, Pittsburgh will be at Chicago, New York at Brooklyn and Philadelphia at Boston.

The Yankees will raise their American league pennant in pregame ceremonies with League President William Harridge officiating and Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia will throw the first ball.

Partly because of weather uncertainties and partly because many fans are too busy in midweek to get to the games, the attendance on opening day this year is likely to be less than in the past

If all eight games get by the weather the total turnout probably will be in excess of 160,000, a decline of approximately 25,000 from last year. Only at Cincinnati, always a great first day center, is a sellout of 30,000 expected.

A crowd of 30,000 also is predicted for new York's debut with Washington, but this is less than half the capacity of huge Yankee Stadium. Ernie Bonham, the big righthanded ace of the Yanks, has been designated by Manager Joe McCarthy to pitch against Early Wynn of the Senators.

Another baseball show of considerable interest will be staged across town in Ebbets Field, home of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who will be starting their pennant quest against the New York Giants. On the mound it will be Ed Head for the Dodgers and Bill Lohrman for the Giants.

The Cardinals and Yankees have been made favorites by the baseball writers to repeat their championships of last year, but all observers acknowledge that the outlook is more confusing this year than ever.

It was announced yesterday that Vander Meer has been placed in 1-A and with his departure will go a large share of the Reds' pennant chances. Although their rivals are certain to suffer similar blows along the way.

* * *

After playing tomorrow and Thursday, both leagues have arranged an open rate on Good Friday and another off day on Monday. The "second openers," i. e., the first home games for the clubs opening on the road tomorrow, will be played next Tuesday.

De Berry Manages Girl Softballers

CHICAGO—(INS)—John Herman ("Hank") De Berry, former catcher for the Brooklyn Dodgers, has signed a contract to manage one of the teams in the all-American Girls Softball league, Ken Sells, league president announced today.

The signing of De Berry gives the league three of its four managers, Eddie Stumpf and Johnny Gottselig, Black Hawk hockey star, having previously come to terms with sells.

Jimmy Hamilton, of Nashville, Tenn., scout for the softball league, has been instructed to collaborate with the three managers in arranging tryout games in St. Louis, Mo., April 24 and 25, and in Cleveland and Detroit May 1 and 2.

BATTER UP!

PLAY BALL!—With the opening today of the major league season, baseball, America's national game, explodes into the spotlight to dominate the sports scene until October—barring a curtailment because of the war. The service call in the American league numbers more than 140 and in the National, more than 110. Many of the stars are gone but baseball plans to carry on. The schedules are set, the players have finished training, the fans are waiting. Batter Up! Play Ball!

Heath And Desautels May Not Be In Opening Lineup

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Outfielder Jeff Heath and Catcher Gene Desautels are doubtful starters for the Cleveland Indians in their American league opener with the Detroit Tigers here tomorrow.

Weather forced cancellation of yesterday's workout in the stadium and Manager Lou Boudreau said he probably would not start Heath.

"I would like to have had Jeff get some work under his belt. As it is I probably will start him Wednesday," the Tribe pilot said.

Boudreau fears Heath might run the risk of a charley-horse, although he will have the big fellow available for emergency duty. If Heath doesn't start, Oris Hockett will be the left field replacement.

Desautels was hit on the right wrist by a pitched ball in the exhibition game at Cincinnati Sunday. X-ray photos revealed no fracture and Trained Lefty Weisman is treating the injury.

If Desautels is not ready, Buddy Rosar, whom the Indians obtained in a trade with the New York Yankees, will catch Jim Bagby, Tommy Bridges or Virgil Trucks probably will receive the Detroit mound assignment, although Manager Steve O'Neill won't commit himself.

Starting his third season with the Tribe, Bagby has a lifetime record of seven victories and six defeats against the Tigers. Last season, when he registered 17 wins while losing only nine, he beat the Tigers three times and lost only once.

* * *

Bagby didn't know his record against the Tigers, explaining, "I never look back at the records. They either beat me or they don't."

The Indians' management anticipates an opening day crowd of 35,000.

Reds Boast Improved Club

That's More Than Rest Of League Can Say.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — It may seem odd, with Johnny Vander Meer and Mike McCormick apparently headed for Uncle Sam's armed forces, but the front office of the Cincinnati Reds is optimistic about the forthcoming baseball season.

It's a sort of negative confidence along the lines of "we've got more of a ball club left than anybody else," but the graybeards may know what they're talking about.

General Manager Warren C. Giles puts its this way: "We've got a better team now than at any time last year, and that's more than anybody else can say."

* * *

His amanuensis, Traveling Secretary Gabe Paul, is more emphatic.

"Listen, boy," says Gabe, "we're going places this year."

Giles lists as assets Buddy Miller at shortstop, making Third Baseman Bert Haas a steadier player, and a fair fund of reserve strength, not to mention, of course, the famed Cincinnati hurling staff.

On the other hand, Giles admits that hitting prospects are not so hot. The team hit around .240 last year and Giles said nothing to indicate that he expected 250 this year.

"Expect," he added, "as (Manager) Bill McKechnie says, no change could be for the worse."

Giles took heart from the two overtime games the Reds won from the Cleveland Indians over the week-end, 3-2 and 2-1.

"Last year we lost all the close ones," he said. "Now maybe we're starting to win them, like in 1940 when we got 40 or so one-run victories and a pennant."

* * *

Giles is not too worried about all the cancelled games of the spring tour. He figures that Muscle Magician Bill Miller got the boys into pretty good shape and that while the pitchers may be a little slow at the start, everything will be fine if the sun only shines Wednesday.

That's when the St. Louis Cardinals show up.

Club League Ends Season

Mansfield Savings Wins Championship.

Club bowling league closed its season last night with Mansfield Savings bank winning the championship with a four-game margin over Tracy-Avery.

A. Shepherd took down high total on the last night of bowling at Colony alleys with a 592 series, while D. Frampton chalked up high game of 243.

There were 16 games of 200 and better in the lists.

King Kong Keller Has Eye On League Batting Honors

By DILLON GRAHAM

(AP Features Sports Editor)

NEW YORK—A dark-browed, thick-shouldered swinger, built low and solid like a fire-plug and bearing a close resemblance to pugilist Paulino Uzcudun, seems the heir-apparent to American league slugging honors this year.

Charley Keller was tabbed as a future star before he was a fortnight out of the University of Maryland, before he had faced a dozen professional pitchers. When Scout Gene McCann signed him for the Yankees he attached this brief notation to his report to boss Ed Barrow:

"This is the greatest prospect I ever signed."

And Keller has made good for McCann. He has been a star since he donned a Yankee monkey-suit in 1939 but, his teammates say, he hasn't reached his peak yet. Maybe this'll be his year. With Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio and others gone to war, Keller may become the No. 1 slugger of the loop.

Based on last year's averages, Keller ranks first among those still in competition in runs batted in, with 108; second in homers, with 26, and sixth in batting, with .292.

A southpaw hitter, the hairy, long-armed Keller always has a batting eye on the short right-field stands when he's at bat in Yankee stadium.

Last year, Charley encountered a slump and had a hard time shaking it. He was hitting only .180 on June first and had to bang the apple at a .350 clip the last three months to bring his final average up to .292.

He finally broke his slump by changing his tactics at the dish. Charley discovered that he was too choosey and that too often he had two strikes on him before he started swinging. He began to cut more right from the start and the hits began to explode off his big bat.

Keller's batting averages for his three varsity years at Maryland were .470, .506 and .494. Charley showed he could blast professional pitching almost as well by hitting .353 his first year at Newark to win the International league batting crown. He was major league material right then but, with other clubs offering fabulous sums for him, the Yankees left him with the Bears another year and he hit .365.

Joe McCarthy brought him to the parent club in 1939 and he hit .334 and was the batting hero of the world series with a .438 average and three homers. Keller hit .286 in 1940, .298 in 1941 and .292 last year. His runs batted in totals increased every year until he drove in 122 in 1941. Last year, because of his early season impotency, he knocked in only 108.

Charley rates as a good fielder and has an accurate throwing arm. He's married and has three children. This year, the Yankees say, he's going to be Mister Big.

Ohio Cage Gate Fell Way Off

123,000 Less Fans Saw Schoolboy Classic.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Attendance at Ohio's high school basketball tournaments—from the county through the state championships—fell off at least 123,000 this year as compared to the 1941-42 "gate," Commissioner H. R. Townsend said today.

Attendance figures on the Cincinnati, Springfield and Dayton sectional-district meets, and the regionals at Dayton, are not yet available, but the deficit is expected to grow larger when the complete returns are in.

The county tournament attendance skidded from 255,464 in 1942 to 179,667 this season, a drop of 75,797. With five of the six districts reporting on sectional-district play, the attendance of 103,900 showed a loss of 41,792.

The state tournament finals, attracting 9,306 this year, dropped 6,742 under the 1942 figures, but the regional play came up with a slight gain. Last year the regionals drew 11,854, but with two tournaments still missing from the 1943 compilation (Dayton and Springfield) the total was up to 12,563, making the Springfield and Dayton figures all surplus.

Heaviest drop was in the southwestern district's county frays, which drew only 39,288 fans as compared with 67,786 a year ago—a loss of 28,498.

Townsend said travel difficulties, due to the rationing of gasoline and other restrictions, caused practically all the attendance loss. Despite the heavy attendance cut, however, the schoolboy cage tourneys drew 305,436 fans, with five tournaments still to be heard from.

Pep Defeats Angel Aviles

Early Leads Wins For Willie In 10-Rounder.

TAMPA, Fla. — (INS)— Lightweight Willie Pep today had another victory to his credit, a 10-round decision gained over Angel Aviles last night before a crowd of 2,600 in the Tampa Municipal auditorium.

Aviles' unorthodox style, in which he switched from time to time from a left-hand to right-hand stance and back again, had Willie puzzled at times.

Pep was given the first six rounds by small margins. The seventh was even and in the last three Angel rallied to take them all, but by a narrow edge.

The only knockdown in the battle came in the last few seconds when Aviles' left swing smashed into Willie's midsection and knocked him through the ropes.

Pep weighed in at 133 and Aviles at 132. Their bout was tame in comparison with that of the semi-windup in which Joey Smithers, MacDill Fkeld, kayoed Tommy Purcell, Drane Field, Lakeland, in the fifth round of a scheduled eight-round fight.

Count Arrives At Louisville Track

NEW YORK—(INS)—Up to his hocks in bandages, and carrying with him the relieved sighs of a legion of Kentucky Derby winter book bettors, Count Fleet arrives in Louisville, Ky., today.

Scheduled to arrive on the same train, but receiving about as much attention as a couple of penniless in-laws, are two more derby candidates, Mrs. John D. Hertz's Whiz-Bang and Allen Simmons' Blue Swords. While the May 1 victory at Churchill Downs is already conceded to the Count, Whiz-Bang and Blue Swords are in the "hopeful" class; hopeful meaning, in this instance, a horse that is expected to trail the Count by no more than 70 yards.

HIRES UMPIRE

COLUMBUS — (INS) — President George M. Trautman of the American Association today announced the signing of Umpire Ira B. Gordon for the 1943 season. Gordon's latest umpiring experience was in the Three-I league, where he served for three seasons.

BIRTHDAY FOR HITLER GLOOMY

Picture's Far Different as Fuehrer Reaches 54 From Outlook a Year Ago.

Rzhev, Vyazma and Smolensk hedgehogs and the Velikie Luki sectors standing firmly; Kharkov was in German hands; the siege of Sevastopol was in its final stages; the springboard for the caucasus was ready.

AFRICA—The desert war was at a standstill with Nazi advance lines only 40 to 50 miles from Egypt's frontier.

FAR EAST—The Allies were falling back steadily before the Japanese, only Corregidor still holding out in the Philippines. The U. S. raid on Tokyo was known only by hysterical Japanese announcements.

AIR WAR—The RAF was yet to launch its 1000-plane raids but the pulverizing of Rostock was just around the corner; the USAAF was not yet operating in daylight from Britain.

But April 20, 1943, is something else. The RAF was throwing world's record attacks almost nightly at the heart of the Nazi military machine—at the Krupp and Skoda works. Planes pummeling the French coast and raiding deeper into Germany.

In Russia the Wehrmacht counted the heavy wounds of the Red army's winter offensive. It had failed to achieve its objectives and had been thrown back.

In Africa, the Allies had the Axis backed into a corner preparatory to launching attacks at the soft Axis underbelly on Europe proper and already were hitting Italy with air raids.

In the Far East, the Japanese advance had been stopped at Burma and thrown back at Guadalcanal and New Guinea with severe losses.

Any looking ahead by Hitler could be only a view of a similar chain of events in the future, and his henchmen were bound to see only reasons for pessimism. A year ago an uncritical analyst could still figure out a way for Germany to win—or at least stalemate—the war. There was little doubt even the most optimistic Nazi would have a most difficult time today doing that.

'Ghost' Breaks In On Hitler Tribute

LONDON (AP)—A powerful ghost voice interrupted the Berlin radio's birthday tribute to "our beloved fuehrer" today by shouting:

"The entire German nation curses today the hour that man was born."

The voice continued:

"This henchman has been in power much too long German people awake! The time has come to finish with the Nazi gang. Down with Hitler and his gang. On the day of Hitler's downfall, the war will be over."

ON HONEYMOON

Only members of the immediate families and a few guests attended the wedding in Good Hope Lutheran church Sunday afternoon. Attendants were Miss Margaret Keller, sister of the bride, and Harvey Long, cousin of the bridegroom.

SUBSTITUTE ON LABOR BILL SEEN

Catlett Says New Measure To Arise From Hearing on French Plan Tonight.

by labor unions probably would be eliminated.

The "cooling-off" clause, Catlett said, would require unions to file an intention to strike with the state department of industrial relations which would set a time and place for a special referendum on the strike. The vote of workers would then determine whether a strike could be called.

The sub-committee which has been studying the bill introduced by Rep. Earl M. French, Delaware county Republican, is scheduled to meet tonight with the sponsor of the measure; William Snow, Toledo attorney who drafted the bill, and labor representatives.

"The French bill definitely is out," Catlett said today in Columbus. "We're trying to find an acceptable substitute. Tonight's meeting may point the way to such a bill, acceptable to both labor and the sponsors of the present measure. We're hopeful of drafting a bill which can be reported out unanimously by the full 20-member committee."

Expected to appear before the sub-committee at the meeting tonight are Ted Silvey, Ohio CIO secretary, and Phil Hannah, secretary of the Ohio Federation of Labor.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Clapper stopped off in Bermuda on his way to Sweden to report on the problems of that nervous neutral.

HAMILTON, Bermuda—(By Wireless)—The secrecy arrangements which are proving so unfortunate in connection with the United Nations food conference at Hot Springs, W. Va., are not being attempted at the refugee conference here.

The meeting at this isolated island resort is being conducted with as much freedom for the press as is possible in any international conference.

Clapper

Officials representing both the Washington and London governments here seem determined to avoid the mistakes that have been made with the food conference. They are most cordial and co-operative in explaining the refugee problem.

Several American correspondents telephoned conference officials for an appointment. They were invited to come in any time.

The first session of the conference is open to the press, but naturally the other discussions will be private. Yet the delegates are glad to have newspaper correspondents come and discuss conference matters, either for direct quotation or for background information.

There has been some comment in the states because this conference is being held at an isolated hotel here. The hotel is a small one of the guest-house type, widely known as "The Horizons." To get to it you hire a horse-drawn, open-face hack. Ours was driven by an enormous Negro in a white tropical helmet. It takes half an hour from my hotel to the conference hotel. The drive is along a narrow road hedged with hibiscus and oleander, and past lily fields now in full bloom for Easter. Normally this is the peak of the Bermuda Easter season. But the American military have taken over the big hotels. There are no tourists.

"The Horizons" is cramped, and there is no room for the press to live there as originally planned. But there is every facility for access to the conference. The hotel grounds are open. There are no armed guards asking passes.

The conference is largely an exploratory affair. At most it will only recommend a program for future consideration by the United Nations. It will consider the plight of refugees without regard to race or creed, but it won't deal with the question of sending food to occupied countries. The policy of that is firm, because food is considered a military matter.

Also, the question of potential refugees now inside Germany, while it will be considered, must be approached cautiously. There have been some hints that Germany might be willing to let the Jews out of Germany and the occupied countries.

Westbrook Pegler is on vacation. His column will resume late this month.

The feeling among the delegates here is that Germany would make no move of that kind from humanitarian motives, but only for military reasons that would benefit Germany. It would be natural for Germany to try to unload excess population on the Allies, to ease its own burden and add to that of the Allies. So all hints in that direction are viewed with deep suspicion.

The chief attention here will be given to making arrangements for refugees who are already out of Germany—such as the 15,000 in Spain. If these could be moved on to some place near the continent of Europe, then perhaps Spain could take more refugees from the occupied countries. The refugee problem is a series of questions of that kind. There is no general solution except victory, but it may be possible to ease the pressure some, although frankly no large hopes should be built on this conference.

No matter how hard the conference works, Europe is bound to remain a heartbreak house until Hitler and his cruel regime are defeated and liquidated.

ANTI-GAMBLING BILL DEFEATED IN OHIO HOUSE

Measure Stiffening Penalties For Numbers Operators Falls Eight Votes Short.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — The Ohio house of representatives has turned thumbs down on an anti-gambling bill designed to kill the numbers racket by providing stiffer penalties for its operators.

A bill proposing a maximum $1,000 fine and seven years' imprisonment for a promoter convicted a second time, and a $1,000 fine and three years in prison for an agent found guilty two or more times of selling numbers—or policy—tickets fell eight votes short of winning approval last night.

The measure recommended for passage by the judiciary committee, received 61 affirmative votes, against 48 votes. Sixty-nine yeas were required for passage.

The maximum penalties provided in the defeated legislation compare with top sentence of a $500 fine and six months in jail under present laws.

Final vote came after action of two amendments which provided most of the ammunition for debate.

One, sponsored by Chester K. Gillespie (R.-Cuyahoga), provided possession of numbers tickets would be classed as a misdemeanor, punishable by a three months' jail sentence. It was adopted.

The second, introduced by John J. Buckley, Mahoning Democrat, sought to exempt churches, fraternal organizations and others operating bingo games and raffles for charitable purposes. It was defeated.

Benjamin F. Reading (R.-Lucas), a minister and one of the three sponsors of the measure, declared after the session a "lack of understanding" of the intent of the bill as respects bingo and raffles apparently contributed to its defeat.

Reading declared bingo and raffles were not the target of the measure. He said it was intended instead to snare the "big fellows" who operate the numbers games.

John L. Catlett, Richland county representative, and a member of the judiciary committee, was one of the 61 members of the house voting for the anti-gambling measure.

DRAG BAY FOR BODIES OF TWO SEA SCOUTS

Leader Who Tried Vainly To Save Boys Sole Survivor of New York Tragedy.

(By United Press)

PATCHOGUE, N. Y. — Coast guardsmen dragged Great South bay today for two missing Sea Scouts who are believed to have drowned along with eight of their comrades who slipped into the water one by one as their scoutmaster tried vainly to save them.

The scouts, ranging in age from 15 to 17, set out yesterday with their scoutmaster, Fred Mayer, 30, in a 36-foot training boat for what was to have been an eight-day Easter holiday cruise.

Two hours after they put out from Sayville, N. Y., a big wave struck the boat and Robert Wood was swept overboard.

Mayer, before he lost consciousness at a local hospital last night, said two of the scouts put out in a tiny dory in an attempt to rescue Wood, but they, too, were swept into the water and disappeared. The remaining seven scouts and Mayer donned life jackets and seconds later, another wave foundered the boat.

The youths clung to the boat hull which stuck above the water, for more than two hours, and one by one relaxed their grip, disappearing into the icy bay as Mayer swam around trying to locate the missing boys.

Mayer was alone on the hull when a merchant ship sighted him. A line was tossed out but he was too weak to grab it.

Two crew members dived into the water to rescue him. Sailors from the ship swam about the area and recovered five bodies. Three others were picked up later by the coast guard. The ship took Mayer to the hospital where his condition was pronounced serious.

The boys were members of the Rockville Centre Sea Scout troop. The known dead listed by police were:

Stanley Kalensky, Lake View.
John Speller, Rockville Centre.
Whitney Wisner, Rockville Centre.
Roy Hanson, Lake View.
Arthur Brown, Arthur Thornton, Leslie Carr, Robert Wood, addresses unknown.

The two still missing were listed as Roy Nellis, and Jack Dawson, addresses unknown.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking for Myself.

NOW that her studio bosses have prevailed upon Veronica Lake to unveil her right eye and forget all about the coiffure that made her famous overnight, I am reasonably sure that they regard her as more than just a flash in the pan and that they intend to pick up all her options. Because it has always been one of the minor paradoxes of the Paradise on the Pacific that whenever a lady hitched her wagon to a trademark and rode to stardom, she either did away with the trademark and became a long-run success or sure as fate her popularity lasted only until the novelty of the thing that had called attention to her in the first place wore off.

Kilgallen

You'll recall that the late Jean Harlow made good as the original "platinum blond," but once she scaled the heights she scored her biggest success in the title role of "Redheaded Woman" and then became a "brownet" for all her subsequent starring parts. Joan Crawford would be hopelessly passe today had she clung to the exaggerated, heavily rouged lips, pencil-thin eyebrows and glamor bob that had every typist and high school girl aping her in the Jazz Age.

Dorothy Lamour got her first break in "Jungle Princess" because even Hollywood knew there weren't any beauty shops in the jungle and because she was the only pretty girl around who had hair that fell to her hips. But when Dottie graduated into important money and varied roles, her locks were shorn. Now, when she makes an occasional sarong picture, she visits the local wig-maker.

Oddly enough, this doesn't happen with male stars. The movie moguls and the public seemed contented to let Boyer keep his accent and his toupee, and Bing his buh-buh-buh-boo indefinitely.

I have finally cleared up the mystery of why Walter O'Keefe has all the comedians eyeing him jealously and saying, "Oh, boy, do I envy you!"

Of course, it just didn't seem reasonable at first. Walter's doing very well, of course, but Al Jolson has more money and Bob Hope has a movie contract besides his lucrative radio jobs, and Milton Berle has his name in big lights as star of the Ziegfeld Follies. What has Walter got that they haven't got?

The answer, I've just discovered, is that Walter doesn't have to look in his ration book to know where his next meal is coming from. He has a big and thriving farm in Stamford, Conn., fully stocked with cows, chickens, pigs and geese, and rich in fruit and vegetables. So his comedian confreres are envying Mr. O'Keefe, not for his gags or even his calypsos, but for his rural plenty. He not only knows which side his bread is buttered on, he can butter it on both sides if he feels like it!

Along with telegraph messengers, and travel bureaus we have lost track of a lot of our peacetime habits, and even our speech is changing. The old phrases that used to come so trippingly to the tongue are now choked back or fall on the ear with a ridiculous tinkle.

Why, there's a whole lexicon of vanishing Americanese. Remember, "Come up to our house for dinner—anytime!" . . . "May I have another piece of butter, please, waiter?" . . . "I'm particular about the kind of guy I go out with." . . . "Gertie's opening tonight. We mustn't forget to send her a wire." . . . "It's Europe's affair, not ours." . . . "All the coffee you can drink for 5 cents." . . . "How's about a little spin in the country?" . . . "This isn't rare. Now take it back and bring me a piece of steak that is." . . . "I wouldn't wear anything but nylons." . . . "We cater to banquets and large parties." . . . "But is it a hundred per cent wool?" . . . "Can't we drive you home?" . . . "Thanks for the case of champagne, Sherman." . . . "He made a million dollars yast year, you know."

Doesn't it make you nostalgic?

Well, if you'd like to hear those songs again, buy another war bond. Buy it today.

SPECIAL BOARD

Reformatory Inmates To Be Registered For Army.

Ohio State Reformatory inmates between the ages of 18 and 45 years will be registered and classified for selective service soon after May 1 when the new special selective service board is established at the institution but they will not be eligible for induction until their terms end or paroles are granted. Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke said today.

"Paroles will not be granted any sooner or any easier now than at any other period," Glattke stressed.

Files of the men will be retained at the reformatory board until they have either completed their terms or been released on parole, Glattke explained. The records will then be forwarded to the home community to which they expect to return.

Under the present set-up, Glattke reported, the men are not registered or classified until they are ready to leave the institution. Their cards have then been sent to the state department of selective service instead of directly to their home boards.

TWO BOYS FACE MURDER CHARGE

Police Say They Confess To Brutal Murder of Their Employer, $34 Theft.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Two young negro boys were charged with murder today before Juvenile Court Judge Harry L. Eastman, after police said they confessed to fatally beating Max Trugman, a waste paper dealer for whom they both worked.

In an attempted robbery Saturday, authorities said, John Henry Boone, 14, and James Holeman, 17, killed Trugman in an office of the Trugman Waste Paper company. The elder boy held the man's arms behind him while the younger brutally beat him with a heavy pipe wrench, according to the report.

The boys had planned the robbery for about noon Saturday, when they would have gotten about $1,220. But postponing the crime until about 6 p. m. they killed the man for a $34 loot, after he had banked most of the money and paid his 10 employes.

Boone, who had worked off and on for Trugman, was suspected by another employe, who said the boy had set fire to rags when he was angry at his employer, and that he had been fired and rehired several times for robbing the office.

Holeman, a convicted burglar and purse snatcher, according to police, had been hired by Trugman only Saturday afternoon.

Rabbits that pop out of hat boxes and chicks that break out of paper shells are the gay favors which the Junior Red Cross members in Shiloh, Madison, Lexington, Amoy, Shenandoah, and Carr Kindergarten schools have been making for the Easter season. The favors will brighten tables and trays at the Reformatory hospital, the Veterans home at Chillicothe, Mansfield General hospital, the Richland County Tuberculosis Sanatorium, Richland County Home for the Aged, and the Hilltop Nursing home.

Principal Harry J. Dotson of John Simpson junior high school appeared unexpectedly at last night's board of education meeting and announced that he was attending his third board meeting in 23 years. "That calls for some kind of celebration," a board member told him. Dotson left the room and came back a little later with soft drinks, potato chips and popcorn for everybody. "We hereby extend you an invitation to visit us every month," Chairman Harold W. Arlin of the board said.

The Mansfield Easter bunny has gone to war, too. The Volunteers of America today announced that the annual egg hunt, usually held Easter afternoon in Middle park, has been cancelled to conserve eggs for the armed forces. About 1,000 eggs have been needed annually to make the hunt interesting for youngsters. Adj. R. L. Gutterman of the Volunteers said he believes the public will understand that a food supply for the fighting men is more important than the annual celebration. Chocolate eggs also are out this year because of the shortage of chocolate and sugar.

GIVEN PRAISE IN SCRAP DRIVE

Mansfield Industries Lauded For Contributing 5,200 Tons During March.

Mansfield area industries today had won the praise of the regional office of the War Production board for contributing 5,200 tons of scrap materials to the war program in March, nearly three times their February contribution.

Figures released by W. A. Snyder, WPB field man, through the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, showed that 118 industrial plants in Richland, Ashland, Crawford, Knox and Morrow counties gave 11,258,574 pounds of metal, rubber, and paper to the war effort last month. The February total was 4,703,880 pounds.

O. C. Rogers, WPB regional salvage chief at Cleveland, cited the area plants for their "excellent showing" for the month. More than 60 of the plants are in Mansfield.

The month's totals included 10,423,313 pounds of scrap iron and steel, 359,989 pounds of copper, brass, zinc and aluminum, 308,995 pounds of rubber, and 166,277 pounds of paper and rags.

The Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company turned in more than 2,000,000 pounds of salvage steel from its slag pile. Special processing equipment, operated by interests outside the plant crushes the slag and extracts the metal which is then sold back to the Empire company for use in its furnaces.

PASTOR RESIGNS

Rev. Showalter Leaves Lincoln Heights Church Aug. 1.

Rev. Roland L. Showalter, pastor of the Church of the Brethren in Lincoln Heights, announced his resignation, effective Aug. 1, following services yesterday.

Rev. Showalter came to Mansfield June 1, 1939 from Chicago where he attended Bethany Biblical seminary.

Rev. and Mrs. Showalter and son John Roland will move to a pastorate near Rochester, N. Y. Rev. Showalter will enter the Colgate-Rochester Divinity school on the campus of the University of Rochester for graduate work in September.

While in Mansfield, Rev. Showalter completed work at Ashland college. For the past three years he has served as secretary-treasurer of the Richland County Ministerial association.

The Showalter family lives at 24 State street.

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — When I tell you that Gary Cooper, who is about six feet three is playing scenes with a man who is about three feet six, you should know, if you are an Edna Ferber fan, that the picture is "Saratoga Trunk."

He who is three and six is, of course, the imp Cupidon, being played by Jerry Austin. From where Jerry stands these days all the world seems to be looking down its collective nose at him. It might not do so if it knew him better. Jerry Austin is a dwarf and his part is one of the most interesting and important to the story.

Coons

This is only a brief flash of glory for Jerry; he never had a part so important before, probably never will again. But he is taking it in stride, being the actor. For most of his 30-odd years he has been singer, comedian, master of ceremonies. His greatest pleasures in life are his frequent visits to institutions where crippled children are found. He likes to tell them—and to prove it by his own experience—that physical handicaps do not necessarily mean that life cannot be both happy and useful.

Jerry is a man with a strong face and a ready smile. He smiles even, when people treat him like a child. When several spirited horses were to be used for one scene, an assistant director insisted that Austin's chair be moved far out of the line of any possible danger. He grinned. "Just like a child," he said.

In the original Ferber story, Cupidon was a mulatto, not quite so dark as Angelique, the Negro maid, whose son he may be; but the movie doesn't make him even a little bit dark. Jerry doesn't know why, except, he suggests, perhaps his features didn't lend themselves to burnt cork.

When the studio acquired this story, the first thing its writers did was to forget about Miss Ferber's prologue in which the two principals, as righteous as they are wealthy, announce plans to dispose of their wealth. Then the story flashes back to many years before when both are young and spirited. The reason for this, as Gary Cooper explained it, was because "nobody cares about a couple of old duffers. This is just a love story of two young people—a blackmailer and a gambler."

The blackmailer is Ingrid Bergman.

There is going to be some breathless waiting among the advertising men of at least two studios. Paramount is holding "For Whom the Bell Tolls," also starring Bergman and Cooper. The second picture out will, of course, capitalize on the first by advertising "You saw them in ——. Now see these lovers again . . ."

To get back to Cupidon for a minute, the world looks down on Jerry, but he is happy: "Sure I have to look up, and a long way to Mr. Cooper. But looking up has its compensations. Looking up one sees lots of blue sky and sunshine, too."

AMERICA'S HENS WORKING FAST

Egg Production for March Sets Record, Agency Says.

CHICAGO —(AP)— The hens on American farms are producing more eggs than they ever did before—and there's a good chance they'll keep on doing it if they can get enough to eat.

The department of agriculture reported today the number of eggs each hen on farms produced in March topped all previous records for the month, totaling 15.74 eggs against 15.51 last year and a 10-year average of 14.18.

Add to this the fact that there are more hens on farms than ever before and the total egg production in March soars to 17 per cent above last year.

WANNA GO HOME

Ohio Legislator Proposes May 17 Adjournment Date.

Rep. John Hayden (R-Clermont) introduced a resolution in the lower chamber calling for adjournment sine die on May 17, although several important measures still remain to be considered.

RUSSIANS DINE ON U. S. HAMS

It Reaches Moscow Via Soviet Reunion Relief Committee.

MOSCOW—(AP)—Moscow housewives found a happy surprise in the stores this morning:

United States ham went on sale, and thousands throughout the city received two-pound allotments.

The new supplies did not come through lease-lend. Their arrival coincided with publication of a Tass dispatch from New York that the "relief committee to the Soviet Union in the war" had collected supplies for Russia exceeding $4,000,000 in the first quarter of the year.

GHOST OF MY LOVE

By Oren Arnold
(Copyright, 1943)

CHAPTER XVII

Rosemary, inherently friendly nd sociable, felt acutely the eed of somebody to talk to, meone to confide in. This was rtly because the yawning emp- ness of Lightning tended to get her nerves; a ghost town can picturesque, but it can be ostly, too!

"Uncle Pete, come walk up to e stream with me," she invited.

"Yes mum!" he replied with acrity. He was virtually her ave, now, due to her repeated ndnesses.

"You are looking better," she ent on. "Since that Indian cook me to us, you've eaten more, aven't you?"

"Huh huh!" he chuckled.

"You keep her, all the time. ou have to eat well to protect ur health. You mustn't try to ve like a bachelor or hermit es!"

"No mum. I got money now. eople in my hotel."

"Oh . . . Yes, I see. Money es make a difference, in our ting."

"Yes mum."

"Why did you bring your rifle, ncle Pete? We're just going alking. I see you carrying it th you everywhere, now."

He didn't answer that. He just inked.

• • •

"You still keeping my pistol r me?"

"Yes mum. His, too."

"His? B-Bill's?"

"Yes mum. He gimme his back, o. Locked up in the vault, with urs."

"Oh." Rosemary laughed a lit- . "I guess Bill's as gun shy as am. I think he gave me mine impulse, anyway. But some y, Uncle Pete, I want to have a cation out here. Then I'll real- play wild west!"

"Yes mum."

"Uncle Pete."

"Mum?"

"You—you know what all we're ing out here. What we are pposed to be doing. I mean, ilding an airport and training hool. Well, you must have seen w little we've actually accom- shed."

"Bill's worried," the old man d.

"Yes, I know. So am I"

"Can I help you?" It was a mple question, put in all good th. "You can have my mules, d I got two horses now."

"Thanks, Uncle Pete. We'll call you. Tell me—if you saw a of work going on down there in the valley, what would you think?"

He just turned to look at the distant valley itself. Automatically her own gaze followed his.

"My goodness!" she breathed, then.

A cloud of dust, not very high but in sharp color contrast to the surrounding landscape, lay over that field.

"Bill's working," said Uncle Pete.

"Yes I—I see. I didn't think he would do it. But he took my counsel. My advice!"

• • •

So she was responsible, indirectly, for this, too. She realized that Bill had listened to her plea, as she had wanted. But she thought he couldn't get going for another 24 hours at least.

"He can get swift action when he has any chance at all!"

"Yes mum."

"I didn't think—I mean—I thought it would take two days more to unload the machinery and get it on the job. But it's been only a few hours. He drove right into town after that courier came. That dust—that'll be scrapers at work, Uncle Pete. Scrapers and trucks and giant plows and things. Levelling runways for planes that—that may never come!"

"Mum?"

"Uncle Pete, I—if you saw all that work under way, what would you think? I mean—"

The old fellow was chuckling. Pleased.

"It would make you happy, wouldn't it? Because you would think—you would feel sure the field was going through! Of course! You'd know—I guess you DO feel that way, now! But if—you didn't want it to go through."

She knew her broken speech was incoherent, but then it wasn't really meant for his own ears. It was just her own mind audibly strengthening a plan.

"It's time for me to move, Uncle Pete. Good-bye, for now I've got to hurry back to town."

"You going to see Boyle?"

"Why—!" she looked at him. "How did you know that?"

The old fellow blinked. His eccentric mind sometimes seemed not to register.

She drove her car the 12 miles to Option in about 20 minutes, and she went directly to Harry Boyle's hotel. She felt oddly elated. She was sure, now, that she had a better bargaining position than she had before when she called on Harry.

She eventually found him in a cafe because it was noon time, and he was all smiles as he invited her to lunch. She accepted. It would give her time to settle down and be nonchalant.

"I came in," she fibbed a little, in opening, "to tell you that I may be going back east soon, and that I don't want you to bother me or even see me any more."

"Yeah? Why bother to tell me? Why not just scram?"

That stymied her. Why not, indeed! But he talked on.

"And what about the big airport deal, baby? Thought you and this St. Clair had to nurse it along."

"Oh, that." Now was her moment for nonchalance! "Have you been out there today? Work's going forward as scheduled. Machinery everywhere. Laborers. Big dust. Everything. And when I leave don't try to follow me. I never loved you. I'll never live with you no matter what pressure you try to bring. You threatened me the other day, but I just wanted to tell you that I'll never work with you in any of your crooked schemes or have anything to do with you at all!"

Far from impressed, Boyle just laughed.

"No go, kid," he said. "You ain't the type for acting."

"What do you mean?" Suspicion assailed her again. And fear.

Once more he chuckled. "Your Harry knows the answers, baby. You were sent here, I know that. Yep, I was out to your airfield. I saw the machinery unloaded, saw it go to work. You and St. Clair are trying to make me think you have another supply of lumber somewhere. No go. I know my stuff. You scoot back to St. Clair and tell him that he and all his tribe can't bluff Harry Boyle."

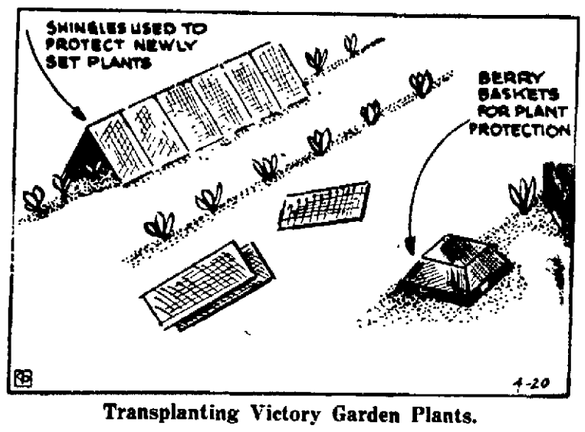
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Transplanting Victory Garden Plants.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Ass'n.)

The ideal day on which to transplant Victory vegetable seedlings outdoors to their permanent location is one that is cool, cloudy and calm. Such a day does not always happen when transplanting time arrives, therefore precautions must be taken to protect the young plants against the hot sun and wind.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, the newly set out plants can be shaded from the hot sun by means of a row of shingles up-ended together to form a "tent." The ordinary wooden berry box can also be used to place over individual plants for protection against sun and wind, as illustrated On very windy days it may be necessary to place a stone on top of each berry box to hold it down. Flower pots or newspapers held in place by stones can also be used for plant protection.

It is always advisable to remove the covering after the sun goes down so that the plants will get the full benefit of the evening dew or any rain which may fall.

It is also advisable to continue to protect the plants for several days after transplanting. If the young plants can be kept from wilting after transplanting they will become established more quickly and grow just that much faster.

Some gardeners find it is a good plan to do transplanting in the evening so that the plants have the cool night to get their roots in working order after the shock of being moved.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 20, 1943.

Thus far April has provided rather typical April weather—as you may have noticed.

Answering a question: Paul Robeson is 45 years old; born in Princeton, N. J., April 9, 1898.

Maybe you sometimes miss reading the little feature, "Dave Boone Says:", which is printed on this page. You shouldn't fail to read it today.

Frightful Product of 1889

NOT AS A TRIBUTE to him, but as an expression of determination that he—and all of the things he stands for—shall be wiped from the face of the earth, Americans today take note of the fact that this is Adolf Hitler's 54th birthday anniversary.

Nature must have been in strange mood during the months preceding this date in 1889 to have assembled in one tiny infant all of the baser elements of jungle savagery, hatred, envy and pitiless cruelty that went into the making of such a monster in human form.

Conditions in Germany, in the years following the 1918 armistice, opened the way for the machinations of this transplanted Austrian agitator, and it cannot be said that the nations allied against the Central Powers in the First World war were not, to some extent, responsible for increasing the fertility of his field of action.

However that may be, the present task of free people everywhere is to wipe out Hitlerism in Europe and to remove the threat of his insane ideas of world domination by what he terms a "master race."

Millions of young Americans are called to military service in the battle against this monster. Others are equally obligated to do what they can. Among the things that can be done by all who stay at home is to buy War Bonds—in either large or small amounts—but to the utmost extent of ability.

This birthday anniversary of Adolf Hitler would be a fitting occasion on which to BUY ANOTHER BOND.

Catlett Favors Meal Tax Repeal

WHILE in Mansfield over the week-end, John L. Catlett, Richland county representative in the state legislature, expressed a favorable attitude toward repeal of the retail sales tax on food served in restaurants and hotels.

This clears the point of how our own representative will vote, in the event of the side-tracked bill ever getting before the house, and it would appear that if a sufficient number of legislators feel the same way about it they could bring the issue to the floor for a vote, regardless of committee effort to smother it.

As presented, the bill calls for removal of the sales tax on commercially served food and on prescription drugs. While there are other items that probably present equal claim to freedom from sales tax, it seems impracticable to extend exemptions further at this time, due to the extravagant requirements of Governor Bricker's budget requests.

But even such a picayunish saving to taxpayers as the estimated $5,000,000 a year that would be cut off by removing the sales tax on the items mentioned is not to be sneezed at. Why can't the legislature, for this one time at least, forget about politics and act sensibly?

Are Fundamentals Being Neglected?

SUCH A REVELATION of ignorance of American history, among a considerable percentage of college freshmen, as was made in the report of a New York Times survey a couple of weeks ago, will probably bring no effective action unless it arouses sufficient public interest to gain restoration of some of the fundamentals of education in the lower grades and through high school.

Except for the few who are chosen to serve on the board of education and those who are more or less active in Parent-Teacher groups, citizens are inclined to show little interest in the operation of schools and to concede the probable correctness of pedagogic theories.

A letter from a Lorain school teacher was printed a few days ago in William F. McDermott's column in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. This teacher says: "Most parents ask only, 'What is his grade?,' not 'What has my child learned?.' The result is that children come to us in the seventh grade unable to read and write words like 'sandstone,' 'ship,' and 'police.' . . . Hardly a day passes without my thinking, 'When is the American public going to wake up?' "

When it is revealed that many children are graduated from high school with little knowledge of American history it is naturally wondered if they are not equally deficient in some of the other fundamental branches of basic education.

It is known, for instance, that some children meet the requirements of high school graduation without being able to spell many of the simple words in everyday use; without having learned how to read understandingly, and with practically no knowledge of grammar or English.

Colleges must work with the material provided them from high schools and high schools are dependent on the foundation work of the lower grades. Like the Lorain school teacher, others may well be wondering, "When is the American public going to wake up?"

More Real Estate Buying Noted

FROM various sources come reports that the real estate business is livening up again. There is very little new construction, of course, but homes are in demand and there is a rising price trend. Industrial areas are crowded, and that pushes up prices. With an unusual amount of money floating around, naturally a good many people take advantage of it to buy homes, building lots, or income-producing property while they can.

This is a fine thing to do—as long as they also play their part in buying bonds that help to pay for the war. Bonds should come first, because unless the victory is won, within a reasonable time, neither real estate nor anything else will be worth much.

In these changing times one observer foresees the 1943 office boy wanting the afternoon off because his grandmother is playing in right field.

Congress seems determined to "take the bit in its teeth and carry the ball"—let the mixed metaphors fall where they may.

When whisky rationing starts, the fellow who boasts he "can drink or leave it alone" will be given a chance to prove it.

EACH HAS A PART TO PLAY

'Venture' Capital Will Be Needed

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—"Venture" capital, according to William L. Batt, vice chairman of the War Production board, is going to be one of the most vital needs for creating employment to take care of returned soldiers needing jobs, and war workers left holding the bag after the armistice.

Mr. Batt points out that it is impossible to diagram the problem, because no one can be sure now just what the last year, much less the last six months, of the war will be like.

"Most of us assume," he said, "that the war in Europe will be over first. Then we figure that the war against Japan will go on for some time after that. But we don't know how long the Pacific war will continue after the European war ends, and we do not have much idea of how vigorous our efforts in the Pacific will have to be. If it continues as an all-out struggle, that is one thing. If it degenerates into a dribbling war, to use a basket ball term, that is quite another."

THE POINT involved, of course, is the rapidity with which war production will be tapered off, and the resulting necessity for providing jobs for men thrown out of employment by the failure of reconverted industry to employ as many men and women as during the peak of war production.

However that works out, when everything is settled down two years, four years, six years or whatever time it is hence, there will be a crying need for NEW enterprises. The demand for goods we know about now, automobiles, radios, washing machines, new tires, luxury goods, etc., is rather definitely known and can be charted. So can the demand for new homes, new furniture, etc. Also we know that for a definite period plenty of buying power will exist to demand full production.

But all this, Batt admits, is not enough. He thinks we will need a considerable amount of government works to provide jobs. But, if the profit system which has made this country great and prosperous is to survive, there must be plenty of encouragement for new enterprises, which means the tolerance by governmental regulatory authorities of "venture" capital.

THIS country has always prospered through the extravagant hope of reward by "venture" capital—money willing to risk total or partial loss in the hope of making a big profit. Most of the hotels and office buildings in crowded Washington today are serving the country's needs because rather foolish investors put up their money in the hope of getting a fat return. It is interesting because most of these investors, even in Washington, where they could scarcely have hoped for such a demand as the war created, lost their shirts!

The point is, however, that the door must be kept open for an occasional killing by these long shot gamblers, because they not only provide lots of employment, but they take the risks necessary to provide needed improvements.

If government regulation, certain to continue, provides that under no circumstances shall there be a bonanza, then all but the most stupid will not take a chance. Which means either government works far beyond the worst WPA days or the dole, or both.

Make Your Easter

EASTER'S strange. Or maybe it's the way we look at it, that's queer. Easter doesn't mean just shining crosses, choruses at dawn for those who've conquered some Golgotha, broken from some tomb. It may, as surely shine through prison bars. Bars made of steel and welded for the breaking of some law. Or bars as grim, which we have forged from our rebellious flesh. Like Bill.

Bill's twenty-nine. Since he was sixteen, Bill's been in a jamb. Bill wasn't born a bum. He came from that big house upon the hill. Perhaps it all began when Bill's Mom died and his Dad took to drink . . . and Bill began to blow around with punks because he'd no place else to go. At sixteen, kids need Homes and Moms and Dads—and fun. Not just a lot of juke-joints when the day is done.

So Bill got in a jamb, that's kept him on a spot for 13 years. And now it's Easter again. But Bill's not giving out with tears.

"I hate this mushy stuff," says Bill. "But still I get to wondering if there's a chance ahead for guys like me. Don't get me wrong, Miss Robinson. I know I'm on a spot. But I'm no sissy—I have asked for all I got. Yet—just suppose—I wanted to start straight when my parole comes up? You know the answers—think I am too late? This Easter business—what's it mean to me? Where would I start, and how'd I rate, if—just suppose—I wanted to go straight?"

Where would you start?

You'd have to start where all of us must start, son—IN YOURSELF. I know it's hard. And doubly hard to start fresh in a pen. But bars are just as hard to conquer, out or in. No matter how they're made, of steel or flesh, all bars will get us down. There's only one place where you'll go to town—THAT'S IN YOURSELF.

THE BREAKS ARE UP TO YOU!
Before the Other Fellow
Can believe in you,
You must, within yourself,
Believe you're true—
Have Faith in your own patience,
Your own Courage,
Your own Truth.

I know it's hard, Bill,
But it simply means
That you must bet
On your own self, Big Boy,
As you would have
The Other Fellow
Bet on You.

Easter is here
And all the world outside
Is taking a fresh start
Within its stride—
If you have spunk enough
To back Exhibit A,
Then—take it from me, Bill—
You'll have your way.
God never meant
His Easter day to be
A time for perfect guys
Who lived life flawlessly—
He only meant
That all of us should know
The Green Light is ahead—
"Buck up, my pal,
"Let's go!"

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

STARTING with practically nothing but some old mail men and a few home economics experts in the department of agriculture, we have built a government army of three million civilian workers—to use the word loosely.

* * *

This is the greatest civic accomplishment since construction of the Tower at Babel and historians will note that it was accomplished without the aid of a labor draft.

* * *

If all the government employes were formed into a pyramid, one man on the next man's shoulders, it would undoubtedly topple over and squash the taxpayer, not to mention his wallet.

* * *

But it would make news that would go 'round the world. And the OWI would doubtless hire 300 more men to carry it around.

* * *

What stands out is the self-sacrifice of these government people. Hundreds of young lawyers, fresh out of school, have turned their backs on a promising career of starvation to accept the government's modest $5,200 or maybe $10,000.

* * *

They don't care what the salary is as long as it is more than they expected.

* * *

Thought for the day: Five million employes by Christmas!

Dave Boone Says:

THIS is Holy Week and there will be a deeper observance of it this year than in generations past. In the last supper, the agony in the garden, the betrayal, torture and crucifixion of the Son of God millions of people will see the present tragedy of the tortured world. And in the resurrection of Easter they will find the hope of triumph, brotherly love and peace.

* * *

In all the written words of man none are so moving as the story of the passion of our Lord as chronicled by St. Matthew. Read in services in churches, homes and wherever our soldiers, sailors, fliers and marines are trying to preserve the things we hold sacred, this gospel story again fanned the spirit of mankind into a new glow.

* * *

The world is being scourged, whipped, spat upon and driven down the bloody road just as Jesus was. And through its sufferings will come its redemption.

* * *

You can talk about books of the month, great news stories and all the stirring tidings the week may bring by cable or radio, but this will be a week when the Good Book will top everything and when the story of Holy Week will have more readers than all the other things put together.

Strategists Believe Rommel Can Evacuate Only One-Tenth of Army

WASHINGTON—Big question-mark about Rommel is—will he be able to evacuate his forces from Tunisia?

Here is the answer given by war department top-flight experts.

Rommel has a great concentration of anti-aircraft artillery in the northern corner of Tunisia to which he has withdrawn. This includes not only his own stuff, but also the artillery of Gen. Von Arnim's units. He will be able to put up a blanket of anti-aircraft fire so intense that Allied air attacks will be costly.

In addition, the Germans will try to bring an air umbrella from Italy, to cover Rommel's evacuation. This is the same strategy adopted by the British for the evacuation from Dunkerque, when they withdrew their planes from the Continent, repaired, refueled, then whipped back across the Channel, cleared the skies, and kept an umbrella over the British forces until the evacuation was accomplished.

But, foreseeing this, Allied planes already are straffing Sicilian airfields and knocking out Axis planes on the ground, to prevent the air umbrella from ever unfolding.

Also Rommel must begin partial evacuation at once, regardless of whether he tries to hold Tunis and Bizerte. He has so many men in that small area that they get in their own way. This partial evacuation can be accomplished, under cover of night, across the short waist of the Mediterranean, between Tunis and Sicily.

But to evacuate his entire force of nearly 200,000 is regarded impossible. The judgment of War department experts is that he will deliver safely about one-tenth of his men, or 20,000. The rest—a force of 180,000—will be killed or captured, in a catastrophe of such magnitude that Tunis and Bizerte will come to rank alongside Sebastopol and Stalingrad.

But because of Rommel's terrific anti-air strength, the losses will not be on one side alone.

Secretaries of Navy.

NORTH CAROLINA'S able Congressman Graham Barden is not only an expert on naval affairs, but has a sense of humor. Once he sent Secretary of the Navy Knox a clipping from the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer, published by former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels.

The clipping contained a picture of Knox and Secretary of War Stimson with the caption "Ambassador and Mrs. Litvinoff." Under another picture of the Russian ambassador and his wife were the names of Knox and Stimson.

Knox, a newspaper publisher himself, played it straight-face. He replied in a very formal letter that Josephus Daniels doubtless had made a typographical error and meant no harm.

Rationing the Zoo.

CONFRONTED with the food shortage, National Zoo Director Bill Mann, is trying to fool the monkeys. Bananas are scarce, so Dr. Mann has devised a paste made of sweet potatoes, white potatoes and a little honey—all mixed up together — which he passes off as a substitute for bananas.

The soft-bill birds take to it all right, but the monkeys look at him with one eye shut as they eat, indicating they know what tricks he is up to.

The meat problem is not as bad as you might suppose, for the lions have been getting horse meat instead of beef for a long time—ever since the price of beef began to rise several years ago. What's more, horse meat comes closer to the lion's natural diet of zebra.

Like any housewife, Dr. Mann is driven to resourcefulness. What to do about those ant eggs he used to get from Germany and Japan? The birds loved them, and some of his fancy creatures have the most eclectic tastes.

Well, Dr. Mann has turned to the Good Neighbor policy, and is importing a substitute delicacy in the form of dried Mexican flies. Since the days of the Aztecs, the folk below the Rio Grande have been supping on a certain type of water bug (philopods) which scamper in great numbers across the lakes of Mexico.

They are caught in nets, made into a paste (it looks like pate de foie gras) and served without seasoning. For the moment at least, there is no rationing of dried Mexican flies.

Note: Peanut-tossing visitors do not solve the feeding problem. Says Dr. Mann, "It's just as unhealthy for the monkey to eat continually between meals as it is for the little boy who feeds the monkey."

Doctors for Farmers.

CURRENT attacks on Farm Security administration threaten to undo one of the most effective programs of the New Deal. If congress succeeds in stripping FSA of funds, there will be an end of the medical care program, which has brought "group health" to 117,000 families in the lower income classes of the country.

At first, this program was bucked by the American Medical association which worried about "socialized medicine." But after six years a recent report of the conservative Medical association views the experiment with favor.

Reason for the change is that state medical associations, in the proportion of about four to one, declared that the group health program did not destroy the independence of doctors, but actually gave them more business.

The Farm Security medical plan is a "pre-payment plan," under which families in farm areas pay a fixed fee for a full year's medical care for the entire family, regardless of what ailments may develop. The fee ranges from $15 in the poorer areas, upwards to $40.

But the farm bloc, now running wild in congress, probably will sweep aside this aid to rural communities, though it now operates in 1140 counties. Incidentally, most congressmen don't even know this medical service exists.

Tent Hospitals Are Favorite Hangouts; War Is No Fun for Nurses In Battle Areas.

SOMEWHERE IN TUNISIA—American tent hospitals in the battle area seem to be favorite hangouts for correspondents. The presence of American nurses is alleged to have nothing whatever to do with it.

At one hospital three correspondents just moved in and made it their headquarters for a couple of weeks. They'd roam the country in their jeeps during the day, then return to the hospital at night just as though it were a hotel.

There are two favorite hospitals where I drop in now and then for a meal or a night. One is an evacuation hospital—the same one where the other boys stay—which is always kept some 80 miles or more back of the fighting. This is the one staffed largely from Roosevelt hospital in New York.

The other is a mobile surgical hospital, which is usually only about an hour's drive back of the fighting. This is the hospital that landed at Arzew on the day of the North African occupation, and whose nurses were the first ashore in North Africa.

THIS GANG is kept pretty much on the move. They don't dare be too close to the lines, and yet they can't be very far away. So as the war swings back and forth they swing with it. The nurses of this outfit are the most veteran of any in Africa.

There are nearly 60 of them, and they're living just like the soldiers at the front. They have run out of nearly everything feminine. They wear heavy issue shoes, and even men's G. I. underwear. Most of the time they wear army coveralls instead of dresses.

I asked them what to put in the column that they'd like sent from home, and here is what they want—cleansing creams and tissues, fountain pens, shampoos and underwear. That's all they ask. They don't want slips, for they don't wear them.

These girls can really take it. They eat out of mess kits when they're on the move. They do their own washing. They stand regular duty hours all the time, and in emergencies they work without thought of the hours.

During battles they are swamped. Then between battles they have little to do, for a front-line hospital must always be kept pretty free of patients to make room for a sudden influx. A surgical hospital seldom keeps a patient more than three days.

During these lax periods the nurses fill in their time by rolling bandages, sewing sheets and generally getting everything ready for the next storm.

They lead a miserably blank social life. There is absolutely no town life in Central Tunisia, even if they could get to a town. Occasionally an officer will take them for a jeep ride, but usually they're not even permitted to walk up and down the road. They just work, and sleep, and sit, and write letters. War is no fun for them.

They make $186 a month, and pay $21 of it for mess. There's nothing to buy over here, so nearly all of them send money home.

Like the soldiers, they have learned what a valuable implement the steel helmet it. They use it as a foot bath, as a washbasket, as a dirty-clothes hamper, to carry water in, as a cooking utensil, as a chair, as a candle-holder, as a rain-hat, and—er, ah—yes, even as an emergency toilet on cold nights!

Being nurses and accustomed to physical misery, they have not been shocked or upset by the badly wounded men they care for. The thing that has impressed them most is the way the wounded men act. They say they've worked with wounded men lying knee-deep outside the operating rooms, and never does one whimper or complain. They say it's remarkable.

The girls sleep on cots, under army blankets. Very few have sleeping bags. They use outdoor toilets. At one place they've rigged up canvas walls for taking sun baths.

MARY ANN SULLIVAN, of Boston, whom I wrote about last winter, is in this outfit. Some of the other girls I know are Mildred Keelin, of Louisville, Ky.; Amy Nichols, of Blythe, Ga.; Mary Francis, of Waynesville, N. C.; Eva Sacks of Philadelphia, and Kate Rodgers, of Houston, Tex.

Like the soldiers, they think and talk constantly of home, and would like to be home. Yet it's just as Amy Nichols says—she wouldn't go home if they told her she could. All the others feel the same way, practically 100 per cent.

They're terrifically proud of having been the first nurses to land in Africa, and of being continually the closest ones to the fighting lines, and they intend to stay. They are actually in little danger, except from deliberate or accidental bombing. They haven't had any yet.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Morale Builders

I CAME home tired. The day had been raw and cold and the sky was still leaden, with a biting wind. The dampness penetrated a man's winter overcoat. Signs of spring that I had watched eagerly seemed to have been presumptuous—slapped down by return of white winter.

This column was behind—tomorrow the printer's deadline and no copy ready. I reflected, without bitterness, but with aching bones, that the 'simple life,' the 'simple farmer,' the 'simple farmer-columnist' might be aptly so-called—especially the latter.

Then I opened the cottage door and smelled gingerbread! Other odors, too. Baked potatoes, pan sausage, and—could it be—corn muffins! The meal was ready—the table neatly laid with places for seven and a big bowl of watercress in the center. A yellow two-quart pitcher was full of creamy milk; the little coffee pot, big enough for two or three cups, was brewing on the wood stove.

I went right into the kitchen and found the cook. She was about sixteen, pigtailed and rosy, and I felt like kissing her. So I did. She said, "Well, Pappy!" but she didn't mind.

My wife came out from the other room with a bandana over her hair and a dab of white paint on her nose. She hustled me in to see how housecleaning had progressed. We sat on the couch and took inventory of clean, ruffled curtains, newly tinted walls and that freshness of new paint that makes such a wonderful difference in the aspect of humble home, this time of year.

The house was warm and comfortable. Somebody had been on the job here, while I was away.

"Morale is a lot of little things," they say. The longer I live, the more I suspect that those little homekeeping jobs are the most far-reaching of all. Men who work—men who fight—are remembering all the time their homes and the homey, familiar scenes—the dear faces of those they have left behind.

Fortified with a hearty, wholesome meal and the warmth of his own hearth, a man's outlook is changed. Home—antidote for leaden skies, for biting winds and penetrating loneliness. "Homekeeping hearts are happiest."—be it ever so humble, no other place can be like it.
